MR. McGUIRE. Among the many sensations Howard county has enjoyed, or called upon to en dure of late, none has created more surprise than the defection of State's Attorney J. D. McGuire as a Democrat For years basking in the confidence and enjoying the emoluments of the Democratic party in Howard county he deliberately turns his back upon the party and virtually says "Elect me to the office I now hold or go to the-"bowwows." It is a most unaccountable procedure on the part of Mr. McGuire. There is not an iota of excuse for it unless he can demonstrate by his success that the people of Howard county wanted him and no one else.

Unless the Democratic county conven tion should nominate or endorse Mr McGuire (and the convention will never do it in this world) where is he? He may declare that he is still a Democrat but his acceptance of the nomination from the Republicans shows there has been his own creed, in the direction of saving an understanding in the matter and that is sufficient to throw him outside the pale of the party he has professed to be-

Mr. McGuire has been a conspicuous figure in Howard county as State's Attorney, but from the conspicuous he has changed to the picturesque. To the young and rising generation he will be a far as professions are concerned.

Howard county that will justify the course of Mr. McGuire. Up to the present time he has enjoyed the confidence of his fellow-citizens in a very marked degree. But these very friends do not like infidelity to the principles they supposed him an advocate of and they will take occasion to smite his candidacy on every

The Republicans cannot regard him a an accession as he has not, and it is said will not, formally announce himself a Republican. If he is not a Republican he is occupying a very lonely position, and if on the waste of this loneliness he can succeed it will be an extraordinary feat. If not he may regard himself as the Robinson Crusoe of Howard county politics-lord of all he surveys, but the possessor of a very small domain.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE FOR JULY CONtains several articles that are particularly adapted to the season-questions that interest people in early summer. The leading article is "Life at the Athletic Clubs," by Duncan Edwards, who was a famous college athlete and has retained a keen interest in every form of athletic sport. His article has the ada personal knowledge of the clubs which in the god of the country where the Mahe describes, in many large cities. It is son lived modern Masonry recognizes the particuarly full of descriptions of outdoor life at this season of the year, at Travers Island, the Crescent, the Orange, and other clubs that have country as well as city houses. All lovers of out-door sport will be giad that Mr. Edwards favors the present attitude of the larger clubs in which competitive sports are being softened into a general pursuit of exercise, open-air life, and good fellow-ship. The illustraions in this article are fuller than have been ever attempted in a single paper, numbering nearly forty, and representing clubs from New York to San Francisco.

Under the striking title "The United States Will Pay," President Andrews reviews the financial policy of the United States from resumption, and discusses with great clearness the silver question as it confronted the country in 1873.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON'S LAST Novel.-Robert Louis Stevenson's last story, "St. Ives," was left at his death practically completed, so it is stated by our peculiar relation to one whom we those who have seen the manuscript. Many chapters had even received the author's final revision. Stevenson had been at work on this novel for more than a year, and the first half of it had been entirely rewritten several times. The novel is said to deal with the adventures of a Frenchman captured in the Peninsular War and shut up in Ediaburgh Castle. A love affair between him and a Scottish maiden; a duel on the maiden's account between him and a fellowprisoner; and his escape from the prison, are a few of the episodes that promise a romance of as absorbing interest as any Stevenson has produced. "St. Ives" will be published serially in McClure's Magazine; the price of which, by the way, is to be immediately reduced to ten cents a Redeemer. If we are John's Disciples

The celebration was planned by the WM, SIMPSON, Business Manager. officers and members of Patmos Lodge, brethren from the ninth Masonic district to join with them in worship. The new pulpit given to the Presbyterian Church by Grand Master Thomas J. Shryock, of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, was conscerated. It was a gift to Dr. Branch, who is the Masonic grand chaptain. On its base is a plate bearing the inscription "Presented to Ellicott City Presbyterian Church by Thomas J. Shryock, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Free Masons of Maryland, A. F. and A. M. Dr. Branch based his sermon upon a portion of the twenty-first verse of the tenth chapter of St. Mark, "One thing thou lackest," referring to the rich man who inquired of the Saviour how he might inherit life everlasting. Dr. Branch said:

A standing resolution of the Grand Lodge, adopted May 1888, reads:— Whereas, The belief in an infinitely wise, beneficent and Supreme Being, is an essential tenet of our Institution, therefore

Resolved, That the Grand Lodge of Maryland recommend the Subordinate Lodges in this Jurisdiction to attend Divine Service, when convenient to do so at least once a year on Sunday nearest either Festival of St. John.

One of the "conclusions" of the Masonic Congress held in Chicago 1893, reads: 6. The Creed of a Mason. An unequivocal belief and trust in God is the fundamental principle upon which the Institution of Freemasonry was founded and must forever rest. In accordance with the custom of our Lodges in this Masonic District and in obedience to the recommendation of the Grand Lodge we are met in this Christian Churchto worship that God in whom we are all bound to believe, before we can be made Freemasons. We are here "acting by the plumb" in obedience to authority, and "we meet on the level" in the Sanctuary of God, yet we cannot "part on the square" until I point you to a consideration of the words of the text which by accommodation can be used to show the logical Mason the bearing of

The young man who came to Jesus evidently had a longing for something, which he designated as "eternal life" which neither his wealth nor his virtuous character had secured for him, but which he had in some way associated with "doing good." He may have been or could have made a very good Mason, for he measured up to the standard we set for ourselves when we practice friendship, morality, and brotherly love. With the idea of showing him vivid object lesson demonstrating the his mistake and pointing him to the oninstability if not the weakness of man as ly way of salvation, Our Saviour tells the young man to part with his worldly goods and then come and follow Him. There is nothing in the politics of the does not offer eternal life on the conition of poverty, there is no such grace or sacrament alluded to, but unencumbered with his wealth he was to return to the Saviour and in following Him he would find eternal life. The keeping of the second table of the law, on which he prided himself was shown to be incomplete, until he had divested himself of those things in which we fared better than others; by sharing them with others he would prove his love to all men to be the same as his love to himself, in which the Second table of the law is summarily comprehended. This he was unwilling to do, and here we find the "one thing lack-This is the Festival of St. John the Baptist, the Patron Saint of Freemasonry, and the thought is appropriate to this occasion that his mission was distinctly to lead to the Saviour, whom he calls "The Lamb of God, that taketh away the sins of the world." Shall we follow our Patron Saint to the borders of the ordan, and leave him there preaching Baptism unto Repentance and not turn from our sins to the Saviour, whom he confessed and for whom he came to prepare the way?

I wish to argue from the fundamental beliefs of a Mason to the fundamental beliefs of Christianity and so conience my Brethren that they will be compelled to follow the teachings inculcated in the odge to their logical conclusions, so dis incily taught in the Church. It is not my purpose to obliterate the distinction between Freemasonry and Religion, but to enforce the conclusion that a Freemason should, by that token, be a religious man; that he is illogical and inconsequential when he does not pursue the ourse upon which he has entered and follow the lessons he has learned to their necessary conclusion. 1. A Mason must believe in God. Our Saviour says, "Ye believe in God, believe also in Me." Indeed the argument is that a man who believes in a God. must believe in THE God, and while an cient masonry may have required faith God of the Bible as the one in whom we must believe, and the Grand Orient of France is to-day disfellowshipped be cause it has eliminated the name of Deity from its constitution. I simply ask you who believe in God that you al so believe in His Son. The most we know of God is in and through his Son, so that I am not asking too much of you to believe in the God whom you have seen incarnate, the brightness of the Father's glory and the express image of His person whom we worship as the un-seen God. "This one thing" we Masons lack, to complete the idea of God by re cognizing the person of His Son. 2. Again. We take the Holy Bible s "the rule and guide of our faith and practice." It is the greatest light in Masonry, and the Mason does not follow its light who does not learn the lesson of Salvation by a Redeemer. I will not weary your patience by even a summary of the truths the Bible teaches that are ignored in the Lodge, but ask you to note call our Patron Saint. The connection between St. John the Baptist and our Institution is obscured by the dim light of tradition, but his connection with the Redeemer is not obscure. Are we will ing to claim him as our Patron Saint and reject One whom we claimed as his and our Redeemer? Can we consistently recognize the Prophet and disown the Saviour to whom he pointed? Can we listen to the voice of one crying in the wilderness and not run after him to hear RANGES, the voice from heaven proclaiming "Thou art My Beloved Son; in Thee I am well pleased." No. On St. John's Day, we take the Holy Bible in our hands and we are bound to learn the doctrine of repentance and salvation by we should follow the Nazarene.

3. Again. Masonry has been defined as "A system of Morality. derfully instructive. The Temple, with and its ordinances, the workmen with their tools, the historical incidents with their lessons, the Ark of the Covenant, the whole Bible is full of instruction to the attentive ear of the Freemason. It will lead us far beyond the threshold of religion to the very person of Christ, St. John's Day services at the Ellicott | whose sepulchre becomes a shrine and whose life becomes a model. 4. Again, There are certain truths well understood by Masons, such as resurrection of the body and the immortal-Rev. Dr. Henry Branch, the paster, and ity of the soul, which carry by necessary consequence the doctrine of eternal life, for which the soul continues its existence and the body is prepared in glori- coupled with the trade announcement ous form. "This one thing thou lackest" in the perfection of a glorious hope, and for this is life eternal, to hath sent.

5. Again. We read much in masonic ecognize the fact that the universality of Freemasonry rests on the unity of the race, and "this one thing we lack" if we trace the origin of man to the first Adam and disown our relation to the second Adam. We need not count all men Brethren and disown our elder brother. 6. Again. All our boasted Charity, whose benefactions are world wide, and do not pass by on the other side, lack an element of cheer and comfort which would be twice blest, if done in His name. We must not ourselves be blind, who undertake to "lead the blind by a way they know not." We must know Him who is the way, the truth, the life, if we would "lead them in paths that they have not known." How can you "make darkness light and crooked | 8 to 11 inclusive, valid for return passage Such in brief are some of the thoughts hat run through my mind as I stand before you in this presence on this Holy | will also be placed on sale good going Day and in this Holy Place. I have tried to lead you up from the lessons you have so well learned in the Lodge to their necessary and logical conclusions as taught in your own great light, and in-ulcated in the church of God. If there is one in this presence whose lependence upon his virtuous life leads him to go away sorrowing that any more s required of him than to keep the commandments as he has understood them, in all sincerity, and is not willing to turn aside and follow the Lord Jesus, let me say that the tender eyes of Infinite Love will follow him, the prayers of a Christian church, arise in his behalf and the voice of John the Baptist should arrest him as it cries, Repent!
